SAN ANTONIO

AT AUSTIN, TEXAS. Will at [redacted] Furnish details expeditiously to the New Orleans Office in view of Federal Grand Jury expected in early February 1967. b3 b6 b7C

ADMINISTRATIVE

Two copies each of the documents are enclosed for New Orleans in the event that office desires to furnish a copy to USA and a copy for its investigative use.

New Orleans Office will note these documents were copied on the Dallas Office Xerox machine in the presence of [redacted] and reporting Agent. The copies were dated and initialed on the back by the Agent. Note also that [redacted]

New Orleans will note in reviewing FD-302 and comparison with [redacted] that [redacted] is obviously not telling the truth. Every attempt possible was made to obtain an accurate statement of his activities, but he was evasive and vague and not able to furnish, or unwilling to furnish, specific information. It is the Agent's definite impression that he is involved in some way with activities under investigation by New Orleans.

From information furnished by [redacted] it appears quite likely that [redacted] may be involved with [redacted] and others in furnishing girls to spots in Louisiana. He has denied this and his manner during the interview indicates he is obviously covering up his true purpose in trips to Louisiana and Mississippi. It is strongly suggested that New Orleans consult with the USA about having [redacted] subpoenaed before the FGJ where he would have to testify under oath and be subject to perjury. b6 b7C b7D

Also for information of New Orleans [redacted] claims he paid $800 in cash to HEWITT for the Cadillac. This is highly doubtful as he is living in his second address since moving from [redacted] and is currently living in a low-rent, mixed Government housing apartment project. His wages [redacted] are meager, and he works only part-time as a [redacted] and has no other employment. It is also possible he is hustling girls to various motels in Dallas, which is well known practice of cab drivers in the Dallas area.

As New Orleans will note, the mother and sister of [redacted] were not located. Logical efforts were made to do so without success. In addition, it appears that [redacted] had been associating [redacted] with [redacted] prior to going to Louisiana. [redacted] is best described as a [redacted] and has been picked up numerous times [redacted] by the Dallas Police Department. In the event former associates could be located for [redacted] their credibility as witnesses would be seriously questionable. Police records indicate she has primarily associated with persons of her own type. Attempts to check last known address for [redacted] in Dallas were negative and the apartment building where [redacted] lived is low-rent, transient type and little can be developed about any of the occupants.

San Antonio is not being requested to check Motor Vehicle Division files regarding automobiles possessed by [redacted] as New Orleans was previously advised by San Antonio that this could not be done, per its airtel dated 12/22/66.

The lead at Fort Worth, Texas, is not being covered as this was discontinued per Atlanta letter to Jackson dated 12/16/66.

[redacted]. She also stated that this was her first introduction to prostitution.

Sometime in about May, 1965, [redacted] approached her and asked her if she wanted to go to South Louisiana where there were five houses known to be operating. [redacted] At that time he had a girlfriend who was also a friend of [redacted] whom she identified merely as [redacted]. A short time thereafter [redacted] disappeared and [redacted] later learned that she went to South Louisiana to work as a prostitute.

One night [redacted] quit her job where she was working for a person by the name of [redacted] whose last name is unknown. She stated that [redacted], Louisiana, happened to be in [redacted] office at the time. She said a red card is required before a girl can work as a cocktail waitress there. A short time later she heard that [redacted] was trying to contact her and she believed this to be in early June, 1965. A short time thereafter a police car arrived and took her to the Police Department where she was booked and held merely for investigation. She said that [redacted] took her red card away from her and advised her to leave town immediately. However, the next day he contacted her again and recommended that her red card would be reinstated if she would go to work for [redacted] at the Shindig in Bossier City, Louisiana, at a wage of $40 per week plus a percentage on all the drinks. At about this time a pimp named [redacted], who was also the boyfriend of [redacted] and for whom, she learned, [redacted] was hustling in the Southern part of Louisiana, approached [redacted] and asked her if she wanted to go down there to hustle. She agreed and he thereafter took her to the Marville Bar at Vidalia, Louisiana. She said no state lines were crossed and there was no violation there. This is the first time she ever hustledin a house of prostitution and she hustled for [redacted] all during the time she was there. When she arrived, the Marville Bar had four rooms where girls were hustling and she now understands there are ten. The number of prostitutes present varies from five to fifteen girls and [redacted] was one of the biggest money makers while she was there from about June, 1965, to December, 1965. She stated that the fees charged for tricks varied a great deal and a girl could actually be taken out of the bar for a specified length of time. For instance, she stated that for a straight trick in the bar they charged $1.00 per minute plus $3.00 rent for the room. A person could also take a girl away from the bar for four hours for $100. She also stated that it would cost $63.00 to spend four hours with a girl in the bar.

The Marville Bar is located fourteen miles out of Natchez, Mississippi, in Concordia Parish. There are no telephones there and all the messages are delivered through the Yellow Cab Company in Natchez, Mississippi. She believed the box number for the Marville Bar at Natchez was Post Office Box 417, Vidalia, Louisiana. The girls at the bar get sixty percent of their earnings; however, all of these earnings are turned directly over to their pimps, many of whom lived on the premises until J. D. RICHARDSON forced them to get out. CURT HEWITT operates the bar, but she does not know the name that the license is registered under. The Sheriff of Concordia Parish, Louisiana, defintely gets a pay-off from the operation and she believed that he got one-quarter or one-half of the take. CURT HEWITT made the pay-off directly to the Sheriff's Office through a deputy whom the girls called [redacted]. She never saw the pay-off actually take place, but whenever [redacted] appeared the word passed through the bar that he was there for the pay-off. She does not believe that there was a pay-off to the Natchez, Mississippi, Police Department; however, she said there could have been one inasmuch as most of their customers came from that area. J. D. RICHARDSON and CURT HEWITT each received one-fourth of the take. b6 b7C b7D

J. D. RICHARDSON lived across the highway from the Marville Bar but owned the property that the bar was on. RICHARDSON was a rancher and made part of his living from the operation of a service station where he lived. RICHARDSON was a nice, likable person and was previously clean-cut and he helped her get away from the Marville Bar where girls were kept as virtual prisoners inasmuch as they could receive no mail or telephone calls while they were there. Their only outside contact was through their pimps. RICHARDSON came to the conclusion that he was being cheated out of a large part of his percentage; therefore, he put a "square girl" on the premises to look after his interests. [redacted] stated, however, that every inch of the bar is bugged with a device; therefore, his placing this girl on the premises did not help him a bit, inasmuch as they knew of the substance of all the conversations which RICHARDSON had with this "square girl." She also stated that all of the girls knew in advance when police authorities including Federal authorities were going to arrive and were told what answers to give. She believed that the tip-off came through the Sheriff's Office of Concordia Parish.

Concerning [redacted] she stated that he still has all of her belongings and that he will not give them back; therefore, she does not care what happens to him. She said that [redacted] is still a major pimp and all of his contacts are with prostitutes active in this field. [redacted] owns and operates the Kickapoo Service Station at the Kickapoo Motel in Bossier City, Louisiana. His home address is listed in the telephone book under the name [redacted] at Shreveport, Louisiana. [redacted] is still one of his girls and he is reported to have several other prostitutes hustling for him. She further advised that he gets his mail at box [redacted] Shreveport, Louisiana, and was driving a black Lincoln Continental. She stated that neighter [redacted] nor anyone else at that operation knows of her present activities and location.

b7D

Concerning CURT HEWITT in her dealings with him, she stated that after she had been there for a long time and RICHARDSON had tried to persuade her to buy some things for herself, she complained to HEWITT about [redacted] She told HEWITT that she wanted to put some money in a savings account for her two sons; therefore, she and HEWITT opened a joint savings account. He also insisted that she buy some things for herself. She described HEWITT as a rather nice person and he did not let [redacted] know that they had the savings account together. HEWITT also advised her that she could always come back as an "outlaw" whenever she desired. She worked at the Marville Bar under the name [redacted] and does not recall how much money that she and HEWITT had in the joint savings account; however, it could not have amounted to over $40.

[redacted]

b6
b7C

[redacted] HEWITT sent her $10 on two different occasions via money orders. She stated she assumed that this was the proceeds of their joint savings account; however, this account still may be open and he could have sent her this money out of his own pocket. She said the money was to buy cigarettes and candy while she was [redacted] She recalled that J. D. RICHARDSON never had any girls hustling for him and did not even like to go around the Marville Bar. However, he definitely knew that this bar was nothing but a house of prostitution where a very minor amount of gambling took place. She said this gambling originally consisted of slot machines and blackjack to a small degree; however, they shortly thereafter took the machines out in view of the fact that they had no Federal Tax Stamps. She does not recall the names of the persons who ran the blackjack games, but that another person named BLACKIE owned the gambling machines. She said that BLACKIE owned a legitimate night club about seven miles from Vidalia, Louisiana, but she again stated that all of the gambling there was small time and some crap games actually took place but were after hours.

There was another pimp there by the name of BLACKIE and a prostitute whose real first name is [redacted] She said that [redacted] was approximately forty-three years of age and wore her hair up in a bun; therefore, the other pimps referred to her as "school teacher"; however, she does not know her true identity. She said that [redacted] is one of the better prostitutes in spite of her many years in the trade, but that [redacted] would definitely not cooperate with authorities. She stated that there was another pimp at the Marville Bar named [redacted] stating that he could probably best be identified through the fact that every girl that he has ever turned out has to use the name [redacted]

[redacted] manager of the answering service, advised that she had received several calls for a Mr. HEWITT when she first started dispatching for Yellow Cab, but none since September. Several drivers and former drivers of the Yellow Cab Company in Natchez, Miss., were interviewed. None of those interviewed had any knowledge of messages sent either to or from the Marville to Western Union. All stated that they had taken messages to the Marville and stated that the man behind the bar always paid the four dollar fee for the message delivery. They advised that the messages were called in to the Dispatcher and then given to the cab driver to deliver. Most of these messages were to a man named CURT or KIRK and most of the drivers interviewed identified a photograph of CURT HEWITT as the man who paid them for delivering the messages. Two of the drivers advised that when they took male customers to the Marville Lounge, they were tipped either by the bartender or one of the girls. [redacted] a former driver for Yellow Cab advised that he knew of one incident in which a driver named [redacted] had been paid by CURT HEWITT to drive a customer and one of the girls from the Marville while the customer was in town. INTERSTATE TRANSPORTATION IN AID OF RACKETEERING - GAMBLING

On February 17, 1967, KC T-1 advised that he has known [redacted] for many years. He stated that [redacted] had a nationwide reputation for manufacturing precision square dice; and if his name was on a pair of dice, it gave assurance to many that it was square dice. KC T-1 advised that [redacted] would sell precision dice to a very small and select clientele. KC T-1 advised that as recently as two months ago, [redacted] prepared a shipment destined for a casino in Las Vegas, Nevada, name unknown. An individual attempting to purchase dice from [redacted] in recent months was told by [redacted] that he was out of business with the exception of square dice which he ships to Las Vegas.

KC T-1 advised that [redacted] ceased making dice several years ago with the exception of a very few customers who bought square dice from him. [redacted] currently has in his possession 10,000 blank dice cubes. It was KC T-1's belief that even though [redacted] states he has stopped the business, he will make a special order once in a while if a customer catches him in the right mood and at the right time.

A drill and bit for three ring spots and colored dye, and an [redacted] stamp were recently observed at [redacted] establishment at [redacted] An unknown middle-aged white woman was also at the location.

KC T-1 pointed out that any number of people could have [redacted] dice in their possession without having received them from [redacted] He stated that several places will make a metal stamp for stamping the [redacted] signature on the dice.

This document contains neither recommendations nor conclusions of the FBI. It is the property of the FBI, and is loaned to your agency; it and its contents are not to be distributed outside your agency.

KC T-1 advised that it is very common for dice hustlers, especially in past years, to forge the [redacted] name on their own "percentage" dice. He pointed out that [redacted] now located in Las Vegas, Nevada, formerly of Kansas City, Missouri, used to manufacture on special order percentage dice bearing the [redacted] name.

[redacted] KC T-1 stated that it would be very possible that [redacted] obtains his plain dice from another manufacturer and then stamps the [redacted] name on them and then resells them for twice what he paid for them.

On February 23, 1967, KC T-2 advised that there is no telephone number 642-2325 in use in Kaplan, Louisiana. KC T-2 advised that 642 numbers were in use in the Fork Island, Louisiana, area, but the first two numbers after the hyphen are either 52, 54, or 56. KC T-2 stated that the numbers in use in Kaplan, Louisiana, were in the 643 series and that the first two numbers after the hyphen were 23. KC T-2 advised that the number [redacted] is presently listed to [redacted] Kaplan, Louisiana.

[redacted]

On February 7, 1967, KC T-3 stated that [redacted] resides in the building located at the corner of [redacted] the address at this location being [redacted].

According to KC T-3, [redacted] has not manufactured any dice or paraphernalia for at least one year. KC T-3 said that [redacted] interest in dice manufacturing has dwindled since he was awarded $400,000.00 approximately eight years ago by the Missouri State Highway Department, for right-of-way privileges on land owned by [redacted]

KC T-3 stated that [redacted] owns a cave near Excelsior Springs, Missouri. He is attempting to accumulate early patented tools, machinery, and equipment which he stores in the cave. He has indicated that he plans to open a museum of early patented tools and equipment.

KC T-3 advised that [redacted] is closely acquainted with a woman by the name of [redacted] who resides at [redacted] and who is [redacted] appears to [redacted] with [redacted] and [redacted]

Remarks:

For your information, some similarities were noted in the questioned "Hewitt" endorsements on Qc37; Qc42 through Qc45; Qc47; Qc48 and Qc51 through Qc57 and signatures for HEWITT on fingerprint cards. In addition, some similarities were noted in the "Hewitt" portions of the "Azilida Hewitt" signatures on Q1 through Q4 and the "Hewitt" endorsement on Q8. The limiting factor in these examinations is the lack of enough known signature writing, it being noted that only one fingerprint card signature of HEWITT written in 1964 is suitable for comparison. A further complication is the reduced size and indistinct nature of the questioned endorsements on specimens Qc35 through Qc57.

For your information, upon comparison of the above-enumerated endorsements, differences were noted upon comparison with the questioned "Hewitt" endorsements on Qc35; Qc36; Qc38 through Qc41; Qc46; Qc49 and Qc50. These endorsements appear to be written by a writer other than the writer of the other "Hewitt" endorsements. It was further observed that the "Azilida Hewitt" endorsements on Q1 through Q34 possess unexplained variations upon comparison with these enumerated endorsements. Indications are that there are at least two and possibly three persons preparing the questioned "Hewitt" signatures and endorsements on various items in this case.
